

I believe that the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. Since putting my name on the no call list I have received FAR fewer calls I didn't want. I use to get at least 10 unwanted calls per week, at all hours and days. Now I do not receive any. This makes it much easier to enjoy my time at home. I don't have to screen all of my calls to avoid the annoying telemarketing hang-ups I always use to get.

I think Indianas law works very well, and I do NOT want it altered.
